Very HAPPY or fortunate; no man more happy than you; fortunatus. Tuas fortunas nemo superat; æquas omnium fortunas; prospere tecum agitur, sic, ut invidere nemini possis; felicitate conferri tecum fortasse multi, præferri tibi, anteferri, præponi, anteponi certe nemo potest; ea fortuna uteris quæ potest esse maxima; tam beatus es quam qui maxime; ita beatus es, ut nemo magis, iis vel ornamentis, vel præsidiis redundas, quibus majora esse nulla possunt; nihil non optabile consecutus es, nihil ad felicitatem tibi deest; ea possides ac tenes, quæ beatam vitam efficiant, quæ sunt in vita expetenda, quæ qui possidet; fortunam accusare nullo pacto possit, nullius fortunam sibi exoptare debeat; nemo est paratior ab iis rebus, in quibus sita felicitas est; rebus omnibus affluis, non est, quod quicquam desideres; optimus est rerum tuarum status; tibi satis est vel ingenii vel fortunæ ad bene beateque vivendum; animi, et fortunæ bona sic in te sunt, ut in nullo magis.

I wish a HAPPY end; eventum felicem opto. Quod actum est, dii approbent, succedat ex animi sententia, succedat optime, egregie, præclare cadat, procedat, optatum finem sortiatur; exitum habeat cum animo tuo congruentem, quem ipse vis eventum ferat; acta dii fortunent, confirment, rata velint.

The end shall be HAPPY; eventus rei felix erit. Exitum res habebit, mea quidem ut spes fert, exoptatum, felicem, qualem volumus, et optamus; res ex animi nostri sententia succedet, successu res, quo volumus, eo concludetur ac terminabitur; eventus rei erit optimus, evadet res, quo volumus; non aliter cadet ac volumus; sequetur id quod optamus, optatis fortuna respondebit; res consequetur exitum, eventum, finem exoptatum.

The HAPPY life consists in virtue; vita beata in virtute posita est. Bene sentire recteque facere, satis est ad bene beateque vivendum; unam qui colit probitatem, ei deesse ad felicitatem nihil potest, is ad felicitatem nihil desiderat, nihil requirit; quicunque rationem ducem in vita sequitur, ei ad felicitatem ampla, maximeque certa patet via; probitatem qui possidet, simul is possidet summum bonum; nihil ad felicitatem præterea requirit; boni mores et honestæ rationes felicitatem pariunt; felicitas integritate comparatur; siquis in colenda probitate totus est, feliciter admodum, ac beatissime cum illo agitur.

That was a most HAPPY day to the city; lætissimus ille dies civitati illuxit.

They account themselves so HAPPY, as if they were already half in heaven; digito se cœlum sperant attingere.

To allay, or quite take off, the HATRED of the people; odium populi sedare, restinguere, extinguere.

To be quite free from all fear of HATRED or envy; ab omni invidiæ metu prorsus abesse.

They say this out of HATRED against me; hoc dicunt animo a me alienato.

Their hearts are wounded, and swell with HATRED or envy; saucia sunt eorum corda, et tument invidia.

HATRED is anger long entertained and kept; odium est ira inveterata.

He does not escape HATRED; or, hatred or envy does also reach him; attingit eum invidia.

Those men seem, of set purpose and design, to rush, or run into, the HATRED and enmity of the Romans; isti, quasi de industria, in odium offensionemque populi Romani, irruere videntur.

This authority is so placed, and raised on high, that it seems to be tossed round about with all the storms of HATRED or envy; sic est hæc dignitas quasi præposita atque edita in altum, ut ab omnibus invidiæ ventis circumflari videatur.

If he had publicly killed you, he had turned against himself not only the HATRED but the arms of all nations; si palam te interemisset, omnium in se gentium non solum odia, sed etiam arma convertisset; Cic. pro Deiot.

You and they will never agree, because of your HATRED; iiscum nullus amor vobis, nec fœdera sunto.

At deadly HATRED, or feud, with; capitali odio prosequitur; odio plusquam Vatiniano. Odium namque Vatinianum sumitur pro capitali, ac vehementer acerbo. Vatinius, in quem acerrimo M. Tullius invectus est, in tantum odium populi Romani pervenerat, jam detectis illius flagitiis, ut in proverbium cesserit, odium Vatinianum.

HATE cannot hurt him, he is above the reach of envy; extra aleam invidiæ positus.

I am in good HEALTH; valetudine utor bona. Bene me habeo, mihi bene est, satis commode, satis belle habeo, bene valeo, commode valeo, valetudine bona utor, mihi est ut volo; quales cupio, vires possideo, viribus utor firmis, roboris, virium, valetudinis habeo satis.

HEALTH restored or recovered after sickness; valetudo restituta. Ego te languentem, jacentem, male affectum, ad pristinam valetudinem, virtutemque revocavi; meo beneficio pristinas vires recuperasti, recepisti, confirmatus es; factum est a me, ut ex morbo plane convalesceres, ut ex infirmo validus fieres, ut amissam valetudinem recuperares, ut in statum valetudinis pristinum, optimum restituereris.

I take great pleasure in hearing of your HEALTH; ex valetudine amici voluptas. Tua mihi valetudo magnæ voluptati erit, afficiet me voluptate, afferet mihi voluptatem, lætitiam pariet, gaudium, jucunditatem, oblectationem, hilaritatem, voluptatem capiam, suscipiam, percipiam, sumam, colligam, hauriam ex tua valetudine, corpore tuo confirmato.

In the study of virtue, our HEALTH is not to be neglected; in virtutis studio valetudo curanda. Ita sequi virtutem debemus, ut valetudinem non in postremis ponamus, valetudinis cum virtute ducenda ratio est, sic ad studia virtutis debemus incumbere, ne valetudo negligatur; plurimum virtuti, aliquid tamen valetudini tribuatur; spectanda virtus est, cum ea tamen ne despiciatur valetudo; excubare virtutis in studio præclarum est, indormire tamen valetudini minime debemus; excolatur animus virtutibus, nonnihil tamen corpori serviatur.

By using your studies moderately, you shall have your HEALTH better; moderans studiis valebis rectius. Si modum studiis impones, facies, statues, si tibi moderaberis in studiis, si studia moderabere, si tibi parces in studiis, valetudine melior fies; valetudinem confirmabis, convalesces quotidie magis, firmior ac validior fies; bonæ valetudinis, firmitatis, virium, roboris quotidie plus assequeris, ad perfectam valetudinem quotidie propius accedes.

It is against my HEALTH, or makes me sick; obest valetudini. Igne uti sine valetudinis damno mihi non licet; si ad ignem accedo, obest valetudini, valetudinis cum detrimento sit, læditur valetudo, damnum facit, infirmatur, incommodo afficitur.

To be in good HEALTH; bene, optime, quam rectissime, ex animi sententia valere, habere, habere se. Valetudine optima, integra esse; bona, recta, inoffensa, prospera, secunda, secundissima, incorrupta uti, frui. Confirmatam sanitatem, firmam corporis valetudinem, vires firmatos obtinere, habere. Valenti, sano, integro esse corpore. Nulla parte, nulla morbi difficultate laborat. Omnis expers ægritudinis, vitam sine ullo corporis languore traducere. Non se tædia lectuli calentis expertum meminit die vel uno. Non est vivere sed valere vita.

To HEAL wounds; vulneribus mederi, medicari, opem ferre.

To recover his HEALTH; e gravi morbo recreari, convalescere, assurgere. Melius se habere. E faucibus fati, mortis evadere, emergere. Vires ab ægritudine recolligere, recipere, reparare. Your hand feels more HEALTHFUL and more juicy than usual; manus tua solito est succosior.

How find you yourself in your HEALTH? quomodo tibi placeas?

I have been sometimes in good HEALTH, sometimes in ill; valui varie.

My body is HEALTHY, but my purse is sick; I lack money; corpus valet, sed ægrotat crumena.

I recovered the HEALTH of my body, but my mind was sick; my health is pretty good, but my mind is troubled; a morbo valui, ab animo æger fui; corpus equidem belle habet, sed animo male est.

Have a care of your HEALTH whatever you do; valetudinem tuam velim cures quam diligentissime; habenda est ratio valetudinis.

A sickly man, and of very little HEALTH; a crazy body; valetudine plusquam vitrea; quam imbecilli, quam tenui, aut nulla potius valetudine.

As you love me, look well to yourself and your own HEALTH; da operam ut convalescas; quantum me diligis, tantum fac ut valeas.

I am glad to see you all as well in HEALTH as I am myself; quando ego incolumis, vos incolumes offenderim, lætor.

You must not fast so much for your HEALTH'S sake; valetudinem jejuniis non attenuandam.

I thank God I am in HEALTH; as sound as a bell; I ail nothing; sum equidem, Deo gratiæ, valetudine basilica, pancratica, athletica, pugilica.

He gathers up his crumbs, and recovers his HEALTH now every day; reviviscit jam indies.

If my HEALTH will give leave, if God send health; si per valetudinem licebit.

I hear you are not HEALTHFUL, but somewhat sickly; audio valetudinem tibi esse non prorsus adamantinam.

My HEALTH is very bad, I am ever and anon at death's door; vitam traho toties nutantem.

He is much weakened in his HEALTH by a fever; graviter febre laborat.

Are you in HEALTH yet? I have held it out stoutly; valuistin' usque? sustentavi strenue.

IF; si, conj.

To make as IF; simulare, speciem præbere.

IF it had not been for you; absque te esset. —you will; sis pro, si vis; sultis pro, si vultis.

I. IF without not in the former part of a conditional speech, is rendered by si: in the latter by si, or sin: as, If those things were false, which you informed me of, what do I owe you? but if true, yourself can best testify what the people of Rome are indebted unto me; si falsa fuerunt, quæ tu ad me detulisti, quid ego tibi debeo? sin vera, tu es optimus testis, quid mihi populus Romanus debeat; Cic.

I leave you a kingdom strong, IF you shall be good; if bad, a weak one; ego vobis regnum trado firmum, si boni eritis; si mali, imbecillum; Sal.

II. IF, with not in the latter clause of a sentence having but expressed before it, is rendered by sin aliter, sin minus, sin secus: as,

IF that be so, all will be the easier; but if not, it will be a hard task; id si ita est, omnia faciliora; sin aliter, magnum negotium; Cic. If I can finish it according to my mind, my labor will be well bestowed; but if not, I will throw it into the sea; si ex sententia successit, bene erit opera posita; sin minus, in ipsum mare dejiciemus; Cic. If that fall out, which we desire, we shall be glad; if not, we shall be content; si illud, quod volumus, veniet, gaudebimus; sin secus, patiemur animis æquis; Plaut.

Note: if but come not before IF not, then if not may also be rendered by si non, or si minus; Si adsunt amici honestissimi sermones explicantur; si non, (if not) liber legitur; Plin. Si me putas te istic visurum expectes: si minus (if not) invisas; Cic.

III. If not, where it may be varied by unless, is rendered by ni, nisi, or si non: as,

Is it even so? itane vero? —not so? nonne ita est?

The ISSUE, or the end of a matter; eventus, exitus, successus,-us, m.

To join Issue in law; jungere exitum.

IT; id, illud.

It is usually a sign of the third person or of impersonal verbs: as, It rains; pluit. What is it to you? quid tua refert?

I. It, before a verb, mostly stands for the or that thing, but has usually nothing expressed for it, as being included in the Latin of the verb: as,

It is about four fingers long; instar quatuor digitorum est; Colum.

If It were in my power; si mihi esset integrum; Cic.

1. Note: If the verb following It has another verb coming after that, it will be convenient to try whether that latter clause may not, with good sense, be placed before the former, leaving out It, which if it may, then it is evident that it has nothing needful to be expressed for it: as,

It was death to him to lie hid; i. e. to lie hid was death to him; latere ei mortis erat instar; Cic.

That which is expressed for It (if any thing) is res, or id, or some such like pronoun: as,

It is according to our wish; voto res convenit; Ovid.

He so cast what was left out of the cup, that It sounded again; reliquum sic e poculo ejecit, ut id resonaret; Cic.

Pejore loco res esse non potest; It is as ill as it can be; Ter.

Tibi si isthuc placet; if you like It; Ter.

Ex quo id efficitur; Cic. Qui id fieri poterit? Cic.

2. Note: If a pronoun of the first or second person immediately follow the verb that comes after It, the verb is respectively to be of the first or second person: as, It is I; ego sum. Was it you? tun' eras?

3. Note: It is often occurs at the beginning of a clause, when a substantive plural with an adjective of number or multitude follows it: as, It is ten days since he went away. In these expressions some words seem to be understood, viz. time, space, &c. q. d. It is the time of ten days since. In translating these expressions, either consider the it is, as if it were they, or there are: as, Decem sunt dies, ut abiit; or else vary the phrase by an equivalent expression: as, He went away ten days ago; or, ten days are passed since he went away; or, this is the tenth day since he went away, &c.; decem abhinc dies abiit; decem præteriere dies ex quo abiit; decimus hic dies est postquam abiit; decem dies sunt cum abiit; or, decem dies est cum abiit; for as Cicero said, Triginta dies erant ipsi, cum has dabam literas; so Plautus said, Hanc domum jam multos annos est, cum possideo, atque colo. Jam est ante multos annos.

II. It, after a verb or a preposition, is rendered by id, or hoc, &c.: as,

I easily discerned It; facile id cernebam; Cic.

I will try all ways to come to It; omnes vias persequar quibus ad id perveniam; Cic.

I do not speak It because you are here; non quia præsens ades, hoc dico; Ter.

Id ea faciam gratia; Plaut. Pro certon' tu isthæc dicis? Do you speak it for certain? Ter. Committo et mando hoc tuæ fidei, (I commend it;) Ter.

1. Note: After a verb it is very usual to omit it; unless some emphasis lie in it.

2. Note: If It do evidently refer to a substantive going before, then it is a relative, and to be rendered by ille, is, &c., agreeing with that substantive in gender and number.

3. Note: It many times comes as a relative after a substantive expressed before it, where yet it is not necessary to express it; Joh. 15. 2. Every branch that beareth fruit he purgeth It; omnem [palmitem] qui fert fructum purgat; Bez. The reason is, because the words being cast into the natural order, are complete without It, as here, He purgeth every branch that beareth fruit.

III. It, before self, is included in the Latin for the pronoun self: as, The matter Itself will testify; in medio est res ipsa; Ter. Æquitas lucet ipsa per se; Cic.

Some other Phrases:

It is I; ego sum; Ter. —nothing to me; nihil mea refert; Cic. —some comfort to me; non nihil me consolatur; Cic. —not by strength of body that great things are done, but; non viribus corporum res magnæ geruntur, sed; Cic. —hard to say; dici vix potest; Cæs. —no hard matter; non difficile est; Ib. —no matter whether; nihil interest utrum; Ib. —not my fault; non est ista mea culpa; Cic. —just so with me; eadem mihi usu veniunt; —but as I use to do; soleus meo more fecero; Id.

We are Just going to die; jam jamque moriendum est; Cic.

My life is Just done; mihi quidem ætas acta ferme est; Cic.

To live Justly, or uprightly; æquitatem servare; æquum et bonum colere.

All virtues are comprehended or contained in one only, Justice; in justitia virtutes omnes. Omnes insunt in una justitia virtutes, justitia continentur, comprehendnntur; continet justitia, comprehendit, complectitur omnes virtutes; omnes ad unam justitiam virtutes referuntur, ab una justitia pendent, in una justitia includuntur; qui justitiam tenet, non est ut virtutem ullam præterea desideret, requirat, expetat; nulla virtute justus caret, nulla virtus abest a justo; conjunctæ sunt, colligatæ, connexæ cum justitia virtutes omnes.

Justice is to be followed in a commonwealth; in republica justitia sequenda. In administranda, tractanda, republica, in administratione reipublicæ, jus, honestum, rectum tueri, spectare, sequi, nihil præterea debemus. —is to be followed; upright and true dealing is to be used; justitia sequenda. In administranda, gubernanda, regenda, capessenda, tractanda, curanda, gerenda republica, in omni publico munere, id solum spectare debemus, quid justitia postulet, ratio præcipiat, conscientia proponat; quid sit justitiæ, quid rationi consentaneum, quid cum justitia, cum ratione congruat, conveniat, consentiat; habenda justitiæ summa ratio est; una spectanda justitia, nihil præterea; de una justitia laborandum; sequi ducem justitiam debemus, agere cum justitia, juste, recte, honeste; honestum tuendum est solum; nostra consilia, nostras actiones ad unam justitiam referri decet; propositam habere justitiam, justitiæ servire, ad justitiam incumbere, justitiam exercere debemus; non est in administranda republica ne latum quidem unguem, ne minimum quidem, ne tantillum quidem a justitia discedendum, recedendum.

Few now-a-days have any regard to Justice, or to what is just; justitia curæ paucis. Pauci sunt hac ætate, his temporibus, quibus justitia curæ sit, cordi sit, qui justitiam colant, exerceant, curent, tueantur; qui de justitia laborent, apud quos justitia locum habeat, justitiæ locus, qui se justos præbeant.

A more true balance of Justice; justitiæ trutina, statera justior.

He is a most upright judge, and no ways to be corrupted doing Justice by bribes; judex incorruptæ æquitatis, et justitiæ, æquitatem servans et muneribus nequaquam corrumpendus.

To condescend to listen to Justice without a violent effort on one's part; ad jus sine vi descendere.

Justly, or for good reason; jure, merito, non injuria.

K.

LABORIOUS; laboriosus, assiduus, sedulus, studiosus, impiger, industrius.

To LABOR, or take pains; laborare, operari, niti, moliri. —for hire; operam mercede locare. —diligently; strenue operi incumbere. earnestly; allaborare, contendere; animi toto impetu; omni, vehementissima contentione laborare, elaborare. Sedulo, studiose, pro virili, pro viribus, maximopere, omni opera et ope, omni studio, manibus pedibusque, toto pectore, flagranti studio, maxima industria, summo conatu, noctes diesque, omnibus nervis viribusque quam maxime possit quis eniti, anniti, contendere, conari, agere, facere. In re aliqua sudare, vigilare, excubare; multum operæ, operæ studiique plurimum impendere, conferre, ponere, consumere, collocare, omnes nervos intendere, conatus adhibere; sedulum, strenuam operam dare, navare, omnem adhibere industriam. Nihil non facere. Omnem movere lapidem. Velis equisque, velis remisque contendere. Laborabo industria mea quantum possum pro viribus. Designabo huc omnes meos conatus et inflectam. Viriliter in hoc pulvere desudabo. Tanto in opus incubuit studio, ut parum abfuerit, quin sese laborando confecerit, enecarit, quin ipse operi suo immoreretur. Omnis, totus in hoc sum. Navibus atque quadrigis petere. —with might and main; laborum Iliadem exhaurire, sudores in re aliqua exantlare; Sisyphi saxum volvere; maximo conatu incumbere et adniti; nihil non laborum obire, multum laboris exsudare; non æstimandis laboribus quippiam absolvere; ambabus manibus haurire. —toil, drudge, continually; laboris molestias perpetuas devorare. Gravissimis, maximis laboribus, negotiis, operibus, molestiis onerari, distendi, distringi, vexari, distineri, multari. In labore corporis, in contentione animi perpetua versari; omnem vitæ cursum consumere, conficere. Labores ingentes, immensos, immodicos, assiduos, et pene Herculeos suscipere, exantlare, perferre, sustinere. Perpetuis laboribus, continuis studiis, nocturnis lucubrationibus, sudoribusque diurnis frangere, exercere, enervare, macerare, exhaurire, conficere, defatigare se. Laboris et molestiæ plurimum exhaurire. Usque ad extremum spatium nullum tranquillum atque otiosum spiritum ducere; nullum temporis punctum negotiis vacuum agere. Negotiorum, operum mole obrui, difficultate opprimi; nullis defatigari. Non te respicis. Mane egredi, vesperi domum redire; arare, sudare, nullum tempus prætermittere. Duros, immensos perferre labores. Dies totos vigilesque operi transmittere noctes. Non sibi parcere. —in vain, or to lose his labor; operam ludere, frustra sumere; consumere. Nihil agere—promovere; Ter. Cic. Plaut. male ponere, collocare, frustra, inutiliter locare, conterere. Operam et oleum; omnes industriæ fructus, perdere. Operæ jacturam facere. Frustra, conatu irrito, successu nullo, infructuose, sine fructu, incassum, inaniter, nequicquam laborare, conari. Inanem, sterilem, cassum laborem suscipere. Sisyphi saxum volvere, sudans nitendo neque proficit hilum. Æthiopem, laterem lavare, dealbare. Surdo narrare fabulam. Mortuo verba facere; fluctus numerare. In pertusum vas, dolium aquam infundere. Aerem, nebulas verberare. In arena ædificare. Asinum tundere. Isthmum fodere. Penelopes telam texere. Aquam cribro haurire. Reti ventos venari. In aere piscari. Auribus surdis canere. Infructuoso campo, arido, sterili solo semina committere, tradere. Quid arenæ semina mandas? Non profecturis littora bobus aras. Infelix operam perdas, ut si quis asellum In campo doceat parentem currere frænis. In vento et liquida scribere aqua. Quid tantum insano juvat indulgere labori? Quid juvat ad surdas si cantet Phemius aures? Omnis effusus labor. Studio exercetur inani. Bibulum curvo proscindere littus aratro. Frustra laborem insumere; inanem operam sumere; actum, actam rem, agere; nihil agere; laboribus neutiquam frugiferis fatigari; frustra, inaniter conari; arenam numerare, ventum colere. —in his vocation, or calling; in suo studio atque opere nunquam cessare. In suo instituto, proposito; in sua vivendi ratione, genere, in suo munere fungendo summam, omnem adhibere diligentiam. Officiis vitæ fideliter et cum industria fungi. Partes suas exequi; munus suum obire, tueri diligenter. Provinciam, Spartam quam nactus est ornare, exornare. Officio suo non deesse. In sui muneris administratione laborare. Indefesso labore, studio sua munera exercere; suæ arti inservire. In suis rebus et negotiis gnaviter, strenue operam navare. Quam tribuit sortem fortuna tueri.

A MAN; vir, homo, mortalis.

So much a MAN; in singulos homines.

I. MAN, referring to age, as spoken by way of opposition to child, &c. is rendered by vir: as,

When I became a MAN I put away childish things, 1 Cor. 13. 11.; postquam factus sum vir, abolevi quæ infantis erant; Beza. Quod non modo in puero, sive adolescente, sed etiam in viro admiratione dignum videretur; Plin.

II. MAN, referring to sex, as spoken by way of opposition to woman, &c. is rendered by vir, and mas: as,

Neither do the Roman women swear by Hercules, nor the men by Castor; neque mulieres Romanæ per Herculem dejurant, neque viri per Castorem; Gell.

Holy mysteries, never either seen or heard of by MEN; sacra maribus non invisa solum, sed etiam inaudita; Cic.

III. MAN, relating to the common nature of man, without respect either to age or sex, is rendered by homo and mortalis: as,

Could I deny myself to be a MAN? an poteram inficiari me esse hominem? Cic.

That all MEN may see; ut omnes mortales videre possint; Cic. Homo est mortale animal rationis, et scientiæ capiens; Gell. Quæ sit omnium mortalium expectatio vides; Cic. Juvenal, in the person of a woman, says, homo sum. Cicero says, homo nata fuerat. Nec vox hominem sonat, O Dea certe; Virg.

Note: If the word kind follow MAN, or the appertaining of any thing to man be intimated by it, then it is rendered by humanus: as,

MANKIND rush through forbidden mischief; gens humana ruit per vetitum nefas; Hor.

I do not think any thing uninteresting to me that belongs to a MAN; humani nihil a me alienum puto; Ter. Humano capiti cervicem pictor equinam Jungere si velit; Hor. Aliquem humana specie et figura, qui immanitate bestias vicerit; Cic. Multo maximum bonum patriæ, civibus, tibi, liberis, postremo humanæ genti pepereris, si; Sall. Ex infinita societate generis humani; Cic.

IV. Man, referring to some eminence of some quality, viz. courage, &c. of any person, is rendered by vir: as,

If we will show ourselves to be Men, i. e. brave men; si viri esse volumus; Cic. Exurgite, inquit, aliquando, si viri estis, atque arma capessite; Curt. Sed cum veneris virum te putabo; si Sallustii Empedoclea legeris, hominem non putabo; Cic.

V. Man, referring to the servile condition of any person, is rendered by servus, or famulus: as,

Qu. Croto's Man was made free; servo Qu. Crotonis libertas data est; Cic.

Be it that masters may use severity towards their Men; heris sit sane adhibenda sævitia in famulos; Cic.

VI. Man, put indefinitely without respect to age or sex, nature, quality, or condition, is rendered by quis: as,

A Man may ask what you had to do with her? roget quis, quid tibi cum illa? Ter. So dicat quis; peteret quis, &c.

1. Note: Man in this sense is elegantly rendered by an enallage of the second person of a verb for the third: as,

But what should a Man do? verum quid facias? Ter. Ita est vita hominum quasi cum ludas tesseris; Ter.

Cicero seems to use homo alone in this indefinite sense. Etsi homini nihil magis est optandum, quam prospera fortuna; pro Quint.

2. Note: If any come before Man, then it is rendered by quis, or some compound of it; and by ullus: as,

If any Man bring you into question; si te in judicium quis adducat; Cic. — chance to ask for these cattle; si forte armenta requiret hæc aliquis; Ovid.

Is any Man alive more fortunate than I? ecquis me vivit hodie fortunatior? Ter.

And is there any Man that, knowing this, can suspect? et est quisquam, qui cum hæc cognorit, suspicari possit? Cic.

I never lived more lovingly together with any Man; non ullo cum homine conjunctius vixi; Cic.

If ullus be used for any Man, it must either be negatively; as, Non est ullus qui currat; or interrogatively; as, Estne ullus qui currat? or subjunctively; as, Si ullus me vocabit, statim veniam. Not affirmatively, says R. Stephanus Thes. Lat. Ullus. So ecquis, and consequently ecquisnam, is used but interrogatively, or subjunctively, not in direct either affirmations or negations, that I know of.

3. Note: If every comes before Man, it is rendered by quisque, or unusquisque, and omnis: as,

That which every Man will be fit for; ad quam quisque rem aptus sit futurus; Cic.

Let one and the same be the profit of every Man, and of all; eadem sit utilitas uniuscujusque, et universorum; Cic.

Here every Man must do all he can; hic omnia facere omnis debet; Cic.

4. Note: If no comes before Man, then it is rendered by nemo, and by quis or quisquam, with some negative particle:

There is no Man that I now more wish to see; nemo est, quem ego magis nunc videre cuperam; Ter.

That no Man do hurt to any other; ne cui quis noceat; Cic.

No Man scarcely invited him to his house; domum suam istum non fere quisquam vocabat; Cic.

Homo is very frequently joined with nemo, sometimes in the same case: as, Nunquis hinc me sequitur? Nemo homo est; Ter. Neminem hominem pluris facio; Cic. So Plaut. Nemo vir bonus cuiquam invidet. In this construction nemo is, by an enallage of a substantive for an adjective, put for nullus; according to Vossius; wherein Donatus thinks there is an Archaism; and therefore when Terence uses it, he says, Nove auribus nostris, sed veterum consuetudine locutus est, &c. Sometimes in the genitive case plural: as, Nemo est hominum qui vivat minus; Ter. Facio pluris omnium hominum neminem; Cic. So nemo omnium alone, and nemo omnium mortalium, are Ciceronian phrases.

Homo is also frequently expressed together with other particles; quis, quisquam, &c. Quis homo pro mœcho unquam vidit in domo meretricia deprendi quemquam? Ter. Suam quisque homo rem meminit; Plaut. Quisnam homo est? Ter. An quisquam hominum est æque miser, ut ego? Ter. Nullus frugi esse potest homo, nisi qui bene et male facere tenet; Plaut.

5. Note: After certain adjectives, viz. good, wise, &c. though MAN be expressed in English, yet it will not be always necessary to express any thing for it in Latin: as,

A wise MAN would not do those things, no, not for the preserving of his country; ea ne conservandæ quidem patriæ causa sapiens facturus sit; Cic.

MANIFEST; manifestus, manifestarius, expressus, planus, evidens, conspicuus, apertus, liquidus, clarus.

To Manifest, or to make manifest and plain; manifestare, indicare, illustrare, patefacere, explicare, aperire, detegere; facere ut res claris argumentis signisque luceat; ut minime obscura, dubia, incerta, ambigua sit. Lucem rei et perspicuitatem afferre. Splendorem accersere. Omnem rerum occultarum, abstrusarum, obscuritatem tollere; tenebras discutere, illustrare, subtilitatem excutere. Nullum dubitandi locum; nullam neque inficiandi rationem neque defendendi facultatem relinquere. Rem obscuram dilucidiorem reddere; occultam, in lucem, in medium ferre. Omnem scrupulum ex animis eximere, ejicere, tollere.

It is Manifest, or apparent; luce clarius est; constat, liquet, patet. Liquido, facile apparet. Liquidum, clarum, manifestum, perspicuum, apertum, compertum, illustre, manifesto deprehensum, exploratum, pervulgatum, luculentum, notum omnibus; nemini ignotum, minime obscurum, occultum, dubium, abstrusum est. Res ipsa loquitur. Sole meridiano, ipso die, hac luce clarius apparet. Extra omnem dubitandi aleam positum. Aperte, dilucide, liquido, plane constat. Manifesto, clare, perspicue liquet. Luculenter, luculentissime, evidenter, evidentissime, lucide, splendide, splendidissime, apparet. Quid est quod in hac causa defensionis egeat, indigeat? Qui locus ingenium patroni requirit, aut oratoris eloquentiam magnopere desiderat? Remotis, depulsis omnibus errorum nubeculis, umbraculis; quasi lumen aliquod elucet. In propatulo est, ante oculos omnium ita perspicuum, ut oculis judicare possitis; ut vel cæco appareat. Res non conjectura, sed oculis et manibus tenetur. Maxime enitet; ita in promptu est ut disputatione non egeat; præcisa omnis dubitatio et disputatio sit. Vereor ne aut molestus sim vobis, aut ingeniis vestris videar diffidere, si de tam perspicuis rebus diutius disseram. Non est dubitabile verum. Tum vero manifesta fides. Omnibus et lippis notum et tonsoribus.

The matter is most Manifest, and fully known, through all Sicily; clara res est tota Sicilia celeberrima, atque notissima; Cic.

OF, for concerning, about; de, super.

I. OF, between two substantives, is a sign of a genitive case: as,

The love OF money increases as much as money itself increases; crescit amor nummi, quantum ipsa pecunia crescit; Juven.

But if an adjective denoting some quality in a person or thing come with one substantive after another, whether noun or verb substantive, then as it is sometimes rendered by the genitive, so it is sometimes also rendered by the ablative case: as,

A boy OF an honest look; ingenui vultus puer; Juven.

Maids OF surpassing beauty; forma præstante puellæ; Ovid.

You shall be OF a better countenance; et vultus melioris eris; Ib.

Be OF good cheer; bono animo esto; Ter.

Note: The genitive case after the verb substantive is governed by a noun substantive understood: Est bonæ indolis, scilicet puer, vir, fœmina. Est amplissimi corporis; scilicet, jumentum.

So is it in these: adolescentis est majores natu revereri; Cic.: regum est parcere subjectis; Virg.: wherein proprium or officium is understood. The genitive case after the noun substantive is governed by it, as denoting some part or adjunct of it, and so a thing possessed by it.

II. OF, before the English of the participle of the present tense coming after a substantive, is a sign of a gerund in di: as,

I will make an end OF speaking; finem dicendi faciam; Cic.

So it is after certain adjectives, viz. cupidus, &c.: as,

Desirous OF returning; cupidus redeundi; Ter.

III. OF, before a substantive signifying the matter of which a thing is, or is made, is a sign of a genitive case, and is sometimes rendered by it: as,

I cannot find a penny OF money any where; nummum nusquam reperire argenti queo; Plaut.

This kind of construction is mostly poetical; but more usually it is rendered by the preposition, e, ex, or de: as,

A vessel OF a very great jewel; vas e gemma prægrandi; Cic.

And sometimes it is rendered by an adjective material: as,

Trappings OF silver; phaleræ argenteæ; Plin.

IV. OF, with mine, thine, ours, and yours, after a substantive, is rendered by a pronoun possessive agreeing with the foregoing substantive: as,

This plane-tree OF yours put me in mind; me hæc tua platanus admonuit; Cic.

But if his or hers, theirs or its, follow OF, then may of with its English be rendered by the genitive case of the Latin pronoun demonstrative: as,

This book OF his; hic illius codex.

V. OF, after adjectives signifying desire, carefulness, fearfulness, mindfulness, and their contraries, is a sign of a genitive case: as,

I have ever been exceedingly desirous OF praise; laudis avidissimi semper fuimus; Cic.

Likewise after the English of some participials of the present and pretertense; and verbals in ax: as,

Greedy OF what is other men's; alieni appetens; Sall.

A creature capable OF a noble mind; animal altæ capax mentis; Ovid.

VI. Of, after all partitives (and adjectives put partitively), is a sign of a genitive case: as,

Many Of those trees were set with my own hand; multæ istarum arborum mea manu sunt satæ; Cic.

The elder Of you; major vestrum.

The most elegant Of all the philosophers; elegantissimus omnium philosophorum; Cic.

The eighth Of the wise men; sapientum octavus; Hor.

Hither may be referred, Nihil horum in Mart. and Eorum partim in pompa, partim in acie illustres esse voluerunt; Cic.

Note: This genitive is frequently varied by a preposition: as, Unus e Stoicis; Cic. Est deus e vobis alter; Ovid.

VII. Of, after verbs of accusing, condemning, admonishing, or absolving, is a sign of a genitive case: as,

He accuses another man Of dishonesty; alterum incusat probri; Plaut.

Note: Sometimes an ablative case is used instead of the genitive in accusing, condemning, and acquitting: as, Ego certis propiisque criminibus accusabo; Cic.

VIII. Of, after the English of pœnitet, pudet, piget, tædet, is a sign of a genitive case: as,

It repents them Of their follies; ineptiarum suarum eas pœnitet; Cic.

This genitive case (says Vossius) is governed not by the expressed verb, but by ergo, nomine, or gratia, &c.

IX. Of, after adjectives signifying joy or pride, is a sign of an ablative case; as,

He is glad Of the honor; lætus honore est; Virg.

This ablative seems to be governed by a preposition understood; for so Ter.: Lætus est de amica.

X. Of, after the English of opus or usus (need), dignus, indignus, natus, satus, cretus, ortus, editus, &c. is a sign of an ablative case: as,

You have no need Of a wife; non opus est tibi conjuge; Ovid.

1. Note: Opus has also after it a genitive case: Nobis et magni laboris, et multæ impensæ opus fuit, ut; Cic.

But this is rare: About the nature and use of opus and usus, see more in Stephanus on the words. Dignus also and indignus have a genitive case after them; successionis imperii dignum; Suet.

But this is also rare, and a Grecism.

2. Note: The ablative case after natus, satus, &c. is governed by a preposition understood, which is sometimes expressed: Ex me hic non est natus, sed ex fratre; Ter.

XI. Of, after adjectives of fulness and emptiness, is a sign both of a genitive and an ablative case: as,

I am now full Of business; negotii nunc sum plenus; Plaut.

A city full Of warlike provisions; apparatu bellico plena urbs; Liv.

A body void Of blood and life; sanguinis atque animæ corpus inane; Ovid.

A letter void Of any useful matter; epistola inanis aliqua re utili; Cic.

The genitive case is a Grecism; and the ablative case depends on a preposition understood, and sometimes expressed: A suspicione vacuus; Cic.

XII. Of, before the agent after a word of passive signification or use, stands for by, and is rendered by a, ab, or abs: as,

He is praised Of these, he is blamed of them; laudatur ab his, culpatur ab illis; Hor.

Sometimes it is rendered by a dative case: as,

Nor is he seen Of any body; neque cernitur ulli; Virg.

1. Note: This dative is most usual after passive particles: Ego audita tibi putabam; Cic.; but this use of the dative after a passive is a Grecism.

XIII. Of, after verbs of unloading or depriving, is a sign of an ablative case: as,

I will ease you Of this burden; ego hoc te fasce levabo; Virg.

And here also the ablative case is governed by the preposition a understood. Vacuus the noun is read with that preposition. And as to this, it is with verbs as with nouns.

Hither may be referred verbs of rejoicing, after the English of which, Of is a sign of an ablative case: Gaudet officio; Cic.

See rule IX. Though those verbs have other cases: Jam id gaudeo; Ter. Utrumque lætor; Cic. ob or propter. Nec veterum memini lætorve laborem; Virg. Grecism.

XIV. Of, after verbs of inquiring, hearing, and indeed after most verbs, is rendered by some one of these prepositions, a, ab, e, ex, de : as,

He says he came to inquire Of him ; dicit se venisse quæsitum ab eo ; Sal.

Perhaps you had heard Of somebody ; audisti ex aliquo fortasse ; Ter.

But if a word importing the subject matter follow Of, it is particularly rendered by de and super, as signifying about, or concerning : as,

I have spoken Of friendship in another book ; de amicitia alio libro dictum est ; Cic.

I will write to you Of this thing from Rhegium ; hac super re scribam ad te Rhegio ; Cic.

And if Of be added to the foregoing verb, as a part of it, as necessary to complete the sense of it, it is included in the Latin of the verb : as,

He asks counsel Of the master of the ship ; rectorem ratis consulit ; Virg.

XV. Of, in the expressions, what kind of, what manner of, &c. is rendered by qui or qualis : as,

He asks what kind Of man he was ; rogitat qui vir esset ; Liv.

What manner Of man he ought to be, we have set down ; qualis esset, descripsimus ; Cic.

Plautus seems to use ut in this sense : nam ego vos novisse credo jam ut (what kind of one) sit pater meus : quam liber, quantusque amator fiet.

When he was both very Old and very sick; cum esset summa senectute, et perdita valetudine.

He was twelve years Old; duodecimum ætatis annum nondum excesserat.

It would make the Oldest man live one year longer; hic, vel Nestor, vel Priamus posset repubescere, imo vel mortuus reviviscere.

In his Old and declining age; vergente jam ætate.

If a man should be Older than Methuselah; etiamsi quis trium Nestorum excedat annos.

That poor, little, Old fellow; seniculus ille.

She was now a very Old woman; jam admodum anus.

My Old acquaintance lived at home beloved of all; collactaneus olim, et coætaneus mecum, inter cives suos consenuit, charus omnibus.

We need not look in your mouth to see how Old you are; facies tua computat annos.

The Older, the wiser; difficile est dare verba seni.

One very Old, that cannot live long; in peculio jam Proserpinæ, atque Orci familia numeratur.

A very Old grandsire; decrepitus et capularis senex.

When I was now grown Old; cum jam provectior essem ætate.

When his hair turned white, by reason of Old age; ubi capillus illi versipellis, versicolor erat; cui argentea canorum corona redimivit caput.

The dregs of life, Old age; vitæ fæces, et vappa.

How Old are you? quot annos natus es, habes? quotum annum agis? quot annorum es? quotum numeras ætatis annum?

Those who are white with Old age; quibus florent amygdala; quibus argenteæ canorum coronæ.

He is forty years Old; ætas claudit octavum lustrum; Hor.

To OMIT, or pass by in silence; rem omittere, &c.; missam facere, habere; silere, dissimulare; silentio præterire, obruere, involvere, prætervehi, dissimulare, non attingere; tacitam, tacitus relinquere. De re silere, tacere, nullum verbum facere, nihil dicere, silentium agere, silentium sibi indicere. Abstineo ab hac re. Præstat in his Harpocratem agere. Sicco pede pertransire. —or leave; relinquere, &c.; in præteritis habere; item, habere missum, apud Cic. pro, missum facere. —or leave any thing to the silent judgment of the hearers; tacitis audientium judiciis aliquid relinquere. —quite, or not so much as to touch, any thing; aliquid ne omnino attingere.

I Omit, or leave, those things to your judgments and conjecture; hæc vestris judiciis conjecturæque committo. —or leave off, to speak of the law; de lege reticeo.

We will quite Omit that thing; cujus rei nulla mentio fiet.

The greatest affairs are OMITTED, or passed over in silence; maximæ res tacite prætereunt.

That was not carelessly passed over, but OMITTED designedly; non prætermissum id, sed consulto relictum.

All these things I must OMIT, or pass over, in silence; hæc omnia tacita quodammodo mihi relinquenda sunt.

That I may OMIT other things, which are too many to relate, I will come to that; ut alia omittam, quæ sunt immensa, ad illud veniam.

Let us OMIT, or pass by, these things; missa hæc faciamus; sileamus de istis.

Lest perchance, of the many great acts of Mark Antony, our discourse should OMIT one thing most famous; ne forte ex multis rebus gestis Marci Antonii præclaris, rem unam pulcherrimam nostra transiliat oratio.

But I resolve almost to OMIT, or at the most but lightly to touch, every thing; sed in animo est leviter transire, et tantummodo perstringere unamquamque rem.

Neither must we OMIT, or pass in silence, that; nec silentio involvendum, quod.

Many other things have been OMITTED, or passed over, in the same silence; in eodem silentio multa alia jacuerunt.

These things our discourse shall OMIT; de his nostra silebit oratio.

His greatest deeds will be OMITTED, or passed over in silence; silebitur de maximis illius factis.

Not to OMIT any thing; plenissime dicere; Cic.

ON, or UPON (prep.); super, in, cum abl.

I. ON, before a word of place, beside, near to, or toward, which something is, or is done, is rendered by a, ab, or ad: as,

It is ON the right hand; est a dextra; ad dextram.

1. Note: A and ab are sometimes only understood: Dextra montibus, læva Tyberi amne septus; Liv.

2. Note: Ad is used in this sense where hand or part is expressed or understood; and hardly else.

II. ON, before a word of place above or upon which any thing is, or rests, or is made to rest, is rendered by in, or super: as,

. Phrase.

None ever saw her sit ON horseback; eam nemo unquam in equo sedentem vidit; Cic.

III. ON, or upon, before a word of place, after a word importing motion to that place, is sometimes rendered by in and super, with an accusative case: as,

He fell UPON the body of his noble friend; in egregii corpus amici procidit; Sat.

Sometimes by a verb compounded with in, and a dative case: as,

She fell UPON the sword; incubuit ferro; Ovid.

Ovid has terræ procumbere, but there terræ is the genitive case; in solo or in solum, being understood, says Voss.

Note: Humi is indifferently used for on the ground, whether rest or motion be expressed. In the sense of rest: Jacere humi; Cic. Humi residebant; Curt. In the sense of motion: Stravit humi pronam; Ovid. In the former sense in solo humi, in the latter in solum humi, make up the full construction. And as in the former sense there is read humo, i. e. in humo, so Ovid.: Et jacuit resupinus humo; so in the latter is read in humum; Curt. Plura in humum innoxia cadebant; Tacit. Projectus in humum.

IV. ON or UPON, after verbs signifying to depend, is rendered by a, ab, e, ex, or de: as,

We both depend UPON one chance; casu pendemus ab uno; Lucan.

So in. In sententiis omnium civium famam nostram fortunamque pendere; Cic.

The preposition is frequently omitted after verbs signifying properly to hang; summo quæ pendet aranea tigno; Ovid.

V. ON or UPON, after verbs signifying to bestow, spend, employ, waste, or lose, is rendered by in: as,

You have bestowed many kindnesses UPON me; multitudinem beneficiorum in me contulisti; Cic.

Yet there is variety of construction in some of the verbs of these significations. So Impendo laborem in fœdere faciendo; studia juvenibus erudiendis impendere; and Tempus studiis impendere, are said by Cicero, Quintil., and Plin. So, prædam militibus donat; and, Archiam civitate donasset; are Cæsar's and Cicero's. So aliquid impertias temporis huic quoque cogitationi; Cic. Neque proficiscens quenquam osculo impertivit; Suet.

VI. UPON sometimes is used for after, denoting the reiteration of something already done, and rendered by super: as,

He thanks me with letters UPON letters; gratias aliis super aliis epistolis agit; Plin.

VII. ON or UPON, referring to condition or terms, is rendered by the ablative case of the word denoting the condition, &c.: as,

ON this condition; ea lege; Ter.

This ablative is governed by a preposition understood, which is sometimes expressed: Jubere ei præmium tribui sub ea conditione, ne quid postea scriberet; Cic.

VIII. ON or UPON, after the English of misereor, miseresco, miserescit, is a sign of the genitive case: as,

I am resolved to take pity ON none, because nobody takes compassion on me; neminis misereri certum est, quia mei miseret neminem; Plaut.

IX. ON or UPON, before a musical instrument when playing thereon is denoted, is rendered by the ablative case of the instrument: as,

He is said to have played excellently ON the fiddle; fidibus præclare cecinisse dicitur; Cic. Perhaps cum is understood with these ablatives.

X. ON or UPON, before meat or food that is eaten, is rendered by the ablative case of the meat fed upon: as,

They are fain to live all UPON honey; melle solo coguntur vivere; Varr. Probably here ex is understood; for so Ovid: Vivitur ex rapto. Ex deficit sæpe (says Voss.) cum materia notatur, vel modus, &c.

XI. ON or UPON, before a word of time, is rendered by the ablative case of the word of time: as,

UPON that very day at evening he came home; ea ipsa die domum ad vesperum rediit; Cic. In may seem to be understood: Postremo et qua in die parva periisset soror; Ter. So Stephanus and Voss. read it; though others, Ecqua inde parva periisset soror.

XII. ON or UPON frequently goes to complete the sense of the foregoing word, and then is included in the Latin of it, especially if compounded with ad, in, pro, or super: as,

All good men will look UPON you; te omnes boni intuebuntur; Cic.

The corpse goes ON; funus procedit; Ter.

Currentem incitavi, (I spurred ON); Cic. Præcipitantes impellere (to set on); Cic. Nisi me lactasses, et falsa spe produceres, (drawn on); Ter.

Freti (relying ON) tua humanitate, tibi consilium dabimus; Cic.

Tribunos ad occupanda (to seize ON) Illyricorum castella misit; Liv.

Sed jam ad reliqua pergamus (Let us go ON); Cic. Quod superest perge, mi Brute; Cic.

Some other phrases.

Falsehoods border UPON truths; falsa veris finitima sunt; Cic. Finium extremi, et Æduis contermini erant; Tacit.

UPON what ground? qua de causa? Cic.

You sat judges UPON him; vos in illum judices sedistis; Cic.

But consider whether this be not all ON my side; sed vide ne hoc totum sit a me; Cic.

You are trusted ON neither side; neque in hac neque in illa parte fidem habes; Sal.

The voices go ON neither side; neutro inclinantur sententiæ; Liv.

I give judgment ON your side; secundum te litem do; decerno; judico; Suet. Cic.

If it were not so, you would hardly be ON his side; ni hæc ita essent, cum illo haud stares; Ter.

I will drink ON that side that you drink on; qua tu biberis, hac ego parte bibam; Ovid.

ON one side they sound flat, on the other side sharp; ex altera parte graviter, ex altera acute sonant; Cic. —this side, on that side; hinc, hinc; hinc atque hinc; hinc, illinc; hinc atque illinc. Ex hac parte pudor pugnat, illinc petulantia; hinc pudicitia, illinc stuprum, &c.; Cic. —both sides; ex utraque parte; utrinque; utrobique; Cic. —every side; ex omni parte; undique; Cic. —both sides there is great power in fortune; in utramque partem magna est vis in fortuna; Cic. —the Subines' side, M. Curtius; on the Romans' side, H. Hostilius encouraged to battle; pugnam ciebant, ab

Sabinis M. Curtius; ab Romanis, H. Hostilius; Liv. —this side the mountain, river; cis montem, flumen; Liv. Cæs. Cis is mostly applied to mountains and rivers; citra is of more general use, says Tursel. —the further side of; trans; ultra; Cæs. Cic. Obstinate in OPINION; tenax sententiæ. Ab hac sententia deduci non possum; hanc deponere et aliam suscipere opinionem vix, ægre, nullo modo, nulla ratione, nequaquam, neutiquam, minime, possum, prorsus non possum. Si quis in recta sententia sibi constat, ei magna laus debetur. Si vocer ad exitum vitæ, non faciam, ut hunc sensum amittam.

A settled OPINION; opinio inveterata. Erat hæc in animis hominum inveterata opinio, pervetus, diuturna, multi temporis.

All good men are of one OPINION; una bonorum sententia. Unus omnium bonorum est sensus, idem omnibus probatur, eodem concurrunt omnium sententiæ, sequuntur idem omnes, spectant, probant, opinione tuentur, eadem est omnium sine ulla varietate opinio, opinionum nulla varietas.

Our hearts are one, though our OPINIONS vary; diversæ sententiæ in concordibus animis. Discrepant sententiæ nostræ, cum tamen æque inter nos amemus, mutuus inter nos amor sit; opinione dissentimus, non voluntate; nostræ sententiæ non congruunt, cum animi tamen nostri in amore consentiant; non idem sensus est, non idem judicium, eadem tamen voluntas, eadem benevolentia; opinionum est inter nos dissimilitudo, non animorum, diversa sentimus, eadem tamen volumus; animorum consensus inter nos est, opinionum dissensio.

Diverse OPINIONS; opiniones diversæ. Opinionum dissentione discrepamus; non idem, aliter, diverse, varie sentimus; non quod tibi, mihi idem videtur, placet, probatur.

Animi excolendi gratia vigiliis intempestivis, laboribus immoderatis macerare corpus, attenuare, ad ultimam maciem redigere. Nimio plus operæ in studiis ponere, collocare. Ingurgitare se in philosophiam, et in studiis frangere. Non pro viribus tantum, sed ultra supraque vires in studio literarum eniti, contendere, laborare. Assiduus, perdius et pernox in studiis, in literis. Libris affixus, pertinacissime inhærens. Affectum studiis atque vigiliis corpus.

To OVERTHROW; diruere, &c. —a town; urbi excidium, ruinam ultimam, extremam inferre; civitatem sua ruina et ruderibus opprimere, et sepelire, ad vastitatem vocare. —a kingdom; regnum evertere. —authority; curiæ auctoritatem obterere.

I have OVERTHROWN my cart; plaustrum perculi.

Fortune has OVERTHROWN the most renowned things; fortuna omnia summa evertit. Facile summos hominum principatus fortuna delet, evertit fortunæ vis opulentissima regna; nulla est potentia tanta, quam fortunæ potestas non exsuperet, quæ fortunæ potestati non cedat, quæ fortunæ viribus frangi non possit; parvo negotio summos dominatus fortuna tollit, extinguit, labefacit.

You are the utter OVERTHROW of all yours; exitii tuorum auctor es. Tu tuorum omnium salutem afflixisti; tuos perdidisti; tuos evertisti fortunis omnibus; tuis exitium peperisti, perniciem attulisti, summam calamitatem ac pestem importasti; in ultimum discrimen, in miserrimum statum, in hanc omnium deterrimam, omnibusque miserandam conditionem tuos adduxisti.

OUGHT, more properly AUGHT, a subst.; aliquid, quicquam, quippiam.

For OUGHT I perceive; quantum ego perspicio.

I. OUGHT sometimes is a verb referring to duty, (when so it may be varied by the English should,) and rendered by debeo, oportet, and by the potential mood of the verb that comes before it: as, They oftener think what he may, than what he Ought, to do; sæpius cogitant quid possit, quam quid debeat facere; Cic.

Which Ought to have been done long since; quod jam pridem factum esse oportuit; Cic.

You Ought to have told me before; prædiceres; Ter.

Ought in the sense of duty will be safest rendered by young beginners by oportet or debeo; and the enallage of the future tense of those verbs for the present is elegant; studium conservandi hominis commune mihi vobiscum esse debebit; Cic.

Yet if it have after it a passive English verb, viz. to be, to have been, or had been, with a participle in d, t, or n, following, it will be conveniently rendered by a participle in dus, with a verb substantive: as,

He thinks they Ought to be put to death; censet eos morte esse mulctandos; Cic.

Nor Ought he to have been disowned; nec ipse inficiandus erat; Ovid.

II. Ought sometimes is used substantively for any thing, and rendered by quid, or some compound of it, viz. ecquid, siquid, aliquid, quicquam, or quidpiam; also by res: as,

If you do Ought alone; si tecum agas quid; Cic.

If I had Ought to do with him; si mihi cum illo res esset; Cic. Si quid delinquitur (if ought be amiss); Cic. Ecquid vides? Cave quicquam, nisi quod rogabo te, mihi responderis; Plaut. Quod si tibi res sit cum eo lenone, quocum mihi est, tum sentias; Ter.

III. Ought sometimes is put elliptically for good for ought, and then is rendered by frugi, or some word of like import: as,

You will never be Ought so long as I live; dum ego vivus vivam, nunquam eris frugi bonæ; Plaut.

Note: Ought, in this sense, is used only in conditional, interrogative, or negative speeches; seldom, or not at all, in affirmative.

To PRAISE; laudare, laudibus prosequi. Omnes te summis laudibus extollunt, efferunt, exornant, in cœlum ferunt; semper aliquid ex te promis, quod alios delectet, teipsum laudibus illustret; satisfacere immortalitati laudum tuarum mirabiliter cupit; Cato res Ciceronis ornavit, divinis laudibus extulit, prosecutus est; Brutus effertur laudibus, in cœlum tollitur. —very highly; extollere, summis, amplissimis, magnificis, maximis elogiis, laudibus, præconiis, celebrare, cumulare, decorare, cohonestare, afficere, illustrare, evehere, amplificare, prædicare, prosequi, in cœlum attollere, amplissimis verbis ornare; altius dicendo tollere; pleno ore, plena manu, magnifice, copiose, splendide laudare; supra modum efferre; honorificentissimis verbis appellare. Nomen, laudes integre, ornate celebrare; ad astra ferre; virtutem omni prædicatione et celebritate decorare, in astra tollere, subvehere, buccinare, decantare; miris efferre præconiis. In laudes spatiari, excurrere, se totum effundere. Uberiore laude mactare. Cœlo laudibus æquare. Carmine perpetuo celebrare. —or speak well of, one who has deserved ill; de male merito bene loqui. Licet non optime de me sis meritus, bene tamen tibi dixi, honorifice de te sum locutus, mea fuit de te honorifica oratio; verbum ex ore meo nullum exiit, nisi tua cum laude conjunctum; laudes in te contuli, licet immerentem; licet immerito tuo, laudavi te, extuli, ornavi, affeci laudibus, præclara quædam in te contuli, dixi de te, quæ tibi laudem parerent; iis de te verbis usus sum, quæ ad te honestandum valerent, vim haberent. —a book greatly; dilaudare librum, pro, valde laudare.

To PRAISE one above measure; ferre nomen in astra; ferre ad æthera, astra, cœlum; omnia apud Virg. pro, supra modum laudare, summa laude prosequi; pro quo etiam dicitur, utroque pollice laudare, et propagare laudem alicujus ad sempiternam memoriam; tergeminis honoribus tollere.

To PRAISE, magnify, or extol himself; se efferre laudibus, semet canere; se jactare; seipsum laudare, commendare; se alicui venditare; sui tibicinem esse, agere.

To PRAISE one for any thing; aliquid alicui laudi dare. Ep.

To PRAISE one poorly, i. e. to dispraise; de alicujus laude parcius dicere; laudibus alicujus obscuritatem afferre; alicujus laudes minuere, diminuere, imminuere; aliquid alicui vitio vertere; de alicujus laudibus quicquam delibare; Cic. —magnify and praise one so highly, as if he were one of the heavenly inhabitants; aliquem in cœlitum numero reponere, recondere.

To PRAISE, or esteem alike; in pari laude ponere. —one with songs; alicujus laudes ad cantus prosequi; Cic.

To get PRAISE, or to be praised; magnis laudibus, encomiis celebrari, ornari, prædicari, &c. Palmam repetii; magnam cepi, inveni laudem. Magnus mihi honos habitus est. Gloriam armis adeptus sum. Eximiæ laudis mercedem tuli. Ingenti se attollere fama. —immortal praise; laudem, gloriam immortalem, sempiternam, quæ vix cœlo capi posse videtur, assequi, consequi. Nomen sibi comparare, quod nulla vetustas obruet, nulla unquam obscurabit oblivio, posteritas alet, ipsa æternitas intuebitur, de quo nulla unquam ætas conticescet; quod posteritatis memoria tenacius apprehendet. Vir cujus vita multis præclarisque monumentis ad omnem memoriam est commendata, consecrata; cujus gloriæ vestigia non sunt pressa leviter ad exigui temporis prædicationem, sed altius fixa ad memoriam ejus sempiternam. Omnium sæculorum memoria vivere, vigere. Laude nullis sæculis interitura celebrari.

He has obtained great PRAISE; laudem summam consecutus est. Summam ex eo munere laudem, eximiam, egregiam, miram, mirificam, insignem, immensam, singularem, unicam, incredibilem, excellentem, præstantissimam, amplissimam, æternam, sempiternam, immortalem, non mediocrem, non minimam, non vulgarem consecutus est, adeptus est, obtinuit, tulit, quæsivit, sibi peperit, comparavit.

To seek for PRAISE; celebritatem, splendorem nominis, laudem vehementer, ardenter, mirifice, summe sitire, appetere, amplexari, ambire, aucupari, venari, captare. Laudis desiderio vehementer, mirum in modum, cupiditate infinita capi, flagrare, exardescere. Gloria inhiare; famæ, levitati, servire, inservire. Pro laude obtinenda in media discrimina se offerre. Maximis laboribus, periculis ad summam laudem contendere. Totum animum, curam, cogitationem in laudibus undique colligendis ponere. Toto pectore ad laudem incumbere. Existimationis præclaræ studiosus. Laudis amore tumes.

Desirous of PRAISE; laudis studiosus. Omnes tuos ad laudes impetus novi; quam sis ad laudem propensus, inclinatus, quanti sit apud te laus, quam labores de laude, quam vehementer ad laudem incumbas, quam laudi studeas, quo studio laudem sequaris, quæ tua sit laudis cupiditas, præclare novi, habeo cognitum.

To curry favor by PRAISING; laus gratiæ causa. Tantas in me laudes confers, effers me laudibus non judicio tuo, meritove adductus meo, sed ut ineas a me gratiam, gratiæ causa, ad colligendam benevolentiam; gratiam meam his laudibus aucuparis; das auribus hoc meis; largiris mihi, non veritati; auribus inservis, loqueris ad voluntatem; non hoc animo facis, sed eo consilio id spectas, id secutus, meum tibi ut amorem hoc artificio, hoc tuo quasi merito adjungas, ut mihi gratificeris.

The PRAISE of the unworthy is worthless; nihil est laus ab illaudatis profecta. Ea de laude minimum laboro, eam laudem minimi puto, reputo, facio, duco, æstimo, pendo, flocci facio, contemno, respuo, aspernor, nullam puto, in minimis pono, in postremis habeo, ab ea laude non pendeo, ea me laus minimum movet, parum afficit, non tangit, non capit, non ducit; eam laudem non specto, non amo, non curo, non expetendam duco, inter optabilia non refero; (et hæc omnia passivis licet iisdem verbis convertere;) quæ proficiscitur ab iis, qui ipsi in laude non vivunt, qui laudem ipsi nullam consecuti sunt, qui ab omni laude procul absunt, quibus ipsis laus nulla tribuitur.

You are unworthy of PRAISE; indignus es laude. Indignum te laude præbuisti, ostendisti; non eum te præbuisti, præstitisti, ostendisti, probasti, non ita gessisti, non ea tuæ vitæ ratio fuit, non ejusmodi sunt merita tua, non te talem vidimus, cognovimus, sensimus, experti sumus, non is nobis cognitus es, ut afficiendus, ornandus, decorandus, honestandus, efferendus, extollendus laude sis; ut laus in te non conveniat, tibi debeatur; ut laudis præmium quasi tibi debitum non possis exigere; ut laus, quasi tuis meritis debita merces, persolvenda tibi non esse, tribuenda, deferenda videatur.

A man worthy of all PRAISE; vir omni laude, prædicatione, præconio, omnium sæculorum memoria dignus, dignissimus. Nihil dici potest quod sit ejus meritis par, quod non sit minus futurum, intra, infra laudem, infra meritum. Omni laude major, nunquam satis laudatus. Supra omnem adulationem laudis, et præconiorum assentationem. Vir admirabilis, maxime rarus et pene singularis, summus, divinus, præstantissimus, ornatissimus, ad omnia summa natus, in quo summa sunt omnia; quem literæ nullæ satis dignis laudibus prædicare possunt, nedum amplificare. Vir eo usque laudibus in cœlum attolendus, quousque virtus eniti potest, meritorumque præstantia efferri. Vir ea naturæ facilitate et pietate, ut nunquam ita magnifice quicquam in ejus dicam laudem, quin id hominis virtus longe superat. Omnium gentium, sæculorum omnium, omnis memoriæ facile princeps. Homo est paucorum hominum; haud similis nostrorum hominum. Incomparabilis ille vir dignus qui nunquam senesceret, ægrotaret, aut moreretur; florem hujus ætatis nominasti; gemmam nominasti, non hominem; omnium facile optimus; ut paucos illi comparem, anteponam neminem; vir ad invidiam clarus; homo par paucorum; tanquam sidus quoddam inter alios emicuit; nec parietibus clauditur angustioribus, sed orbe, &c. Tot virtutum ornamentis excultus, præsidio septus, comitatu instructus; vir non sæculi modo sui, sed omnis ævi optimus; vir moribus plusquam niveis. Ad unguem factus homo. Monstratur digito prætereuntium. Digito monstrari et dicier, Hic est.

He was so STRONG a man that; ita bonis viribus fuit ut; Cic.

I am not so STRONG as; minus habeo virium quam; Cic. Non sum iis viribus, quibus.

We are STRONG in horse; equitatu valemus; Cæs.

To be STRONG in shipping; plurimum navibus posse; Cæs.

They were so STRONG; tanta erat in his firmitudo; Cæs.

They fortified the hill with STRONG works; tumulum magnis operibus munierunt; Cæs.

A STRONG guard; firmum præsidium; Cæs.

My STRENGTH is not fully recovered; valetudo nondum confirmata; nondum vires colligere potui; nondum satis firmo sum corpore; nondum satis pristina mihi restituta valetudo est; confirmatus a morbo nondum omnino sum; non plane convalui; quas morbus mihi vires ademit, abstulit, eripuit, nondum prorsus recuperavi, revocavi; pristinam valetudinem nondum satis mihi videor assecutus; paulo adhuc deterius, aliquanto deterius quam solebam, valeo; nondum utor pristina valetudine; pristinas vires quadam ex parte desidero.

Strong, or of great strength; robore præstans; neminem cognovi fortiorem, validiorem, in quo plus roboris, firmitatis, virium, inesset, qui firmior esset a viribus, qui virium firmitate præstaret, qui robore corporis illum anteiret, qui viribus magis valeret, cujus esset præstantior fortitudo.

You are Strong; tam firmus es, tam validus, tam fortis, tam robustus quam qui maxime, ita paratus es a viribus, ut nemo magis; viribus vales, nemo tibi viribus superior est, præstat, antecellit; superiorem viribus neminem habes, paucos pares; firmitate corporis excellis, vires in te sunt firmissimæ; virium, roboris, nervorum in te plurimum est; egregie robustus es, validus, firmus, fortis.

Made Strong by virtue against fortune; virtute contra fortunam munitus; fortunæ vim tuæ virtutis amplitudo vincit; muniisti te virtute contra fortunam; septus es virtutis præsidiis adversus impetus fortunæ; nihil tibi nocere, incommodare, obesse, cum virtute viventi, virtutem colenti, fortuna potest; tutus es a fortunæ injuriis, securam vitam ducere tibi licet, quia cum virtute vivis; non tibi varii casus humanæ vitæ impendent, qui virtute excellas, quem virtus tueatur, tegat, protegat, muniat.

A Strong body; corpus durum patiensque laborum.

A man Strong both in body and mind; insigni tum corporis, tum animi robore præditus; cui vigor mentis, solidumque robur; cui maxima vis est tam animi quam corporis, apud Hom.

He is very Strong in body; prævalidæ sunt in ejus corpore vires.

To be STUBBORN; obfirmare animum.

A Stubborn fellow; homo contumax, præposterus et perversus, effrænatus, pervicax, obstinatus, pertinax, difficilis et morosus, refractarius, rigidus, præfractus; durus, asper, ferox, illiberalis, indomitus, cervicosus; duræ, rigidæ, indomitæ cervicis; ingenii perversi, contumacis; indomiti, contumaciæ summæ, pervicacis, non ferendæ; qui contumaciter spernit, detrectat imperia superiorum; mandatis ægre, minime obsequitur, non morigeratur; suo more, suis moribus tantum vivere; obstinavit animo; suo tantum judicio stat; non est verbis rogandus, sed cogendus fustibus; pervicaciæ morbo tota laborat cervice. Improbus, vir duri oris.

To be very Stubborn; obstinato esse animo, se præfracte gerere.

To grow Stubborn; perdurescere, se obfirmare.

To STUDY; studere, meditari, studiose investigare; in studia incumbere; literis operam dare. —or take great pains in a thing; evigilare.

To Study earnestly; literis bonis, optimis artibus, disciplinis studere, invigilare, operam dare, navare, et in iis elaborare, evigilare, operam ponere, impendere, involvere se literis; in literas se abdere. Studiis bonarum artium, literarum, contemplationi rerum vacare, se totum dare, dicare, devovere, dedere, consecrare, ut ab iis nullo tempore, aut commodo abstrahi, aut voluptate avocari, aut somno retardari possit. Ad artes præclaras; ad artium optimarum, literarum, musarum studia se adjungere, conferre; animum appellere, applicare, adjicere. In literis abdere, involvere se, omne tempus, otium ponere, consumere, conterere. In veteribus scriptis studio se volutare. Musarum sacris operari. Sacris musarum studiis se penitus addicere, animum adjungere. In optimis literarum studiis suavissime otiari, conquiescere, vitæ curriculum conficere. In studia doctrinæ incumbere. Cum musis rationem habere. Studiorum liberalium rationem ingredi, suscipere. In scientia et cognitione rerum se totum collocare. Bonarum artium candidatus, studiosus. Librorum heluo; in quo inexhausta est aviditas legendi. —too hard; nimio plus operæ in studiis ponere, collocare. —philosophy; ad studia philosophiæ rapi, conferre se. Rerum naturam studiose intueri, contemplari. In rerum naturalium, in naturæ inquisitione, indagatione, investigatione, contemplatione, consideratione versari diligenter. Philosophiæ intimam, abstrusam cognitionem indagare, investigare. Admirabili quod ad pullosophandum studio concitari, duci, excitari. Philosophiæ ex omni parte frugiferæ, fructuosæ operam navare sedulam. Recondita philosophiæ studia, præcepta, mysteria e tenebris eruere; in lucem vindicare, aperire, explicare. Totam se in contemplandis rebus perficiendisque ponere. Aciem mentis, acumen ingenii, sapientiæ humanæ studium intendere. —toys; studere rebus levibus; rebus levioribus tuum studium das, tibi placent levitates; contemplaris, sequeris, amas inania; contulisti tuum studium ad res inanes; colis ea, quæ non consistunt, nihil habent firmitudinis, nihil gravitatis, nihil ponderis, infirma, minime solida; amas ea quæ solidum nihil habent. Versari in re levi; tenui mercede, levi quæstu, exiguo lucro das operam in scriptura, operam navas iis, qui vectigalia, vectigalibus. —virtue, to prosper in all goodness; colere virtutem; dare operam virtuti; adolescere et grandescere quotidianis virtutum auctibus; proficere de virtute in virtutem; magna indies bonæ frugis carpere incrementa; incrementum et vires accipere; eximiam ad rectæ vitæ instituta progressionem facere; exercitamentis virtutum multum fructus referre; vitam virtute excolere; omnem operam ac studium ponere in virtute colenda; se proripere virtutis ad fastigium; proficere in mentem bonam salutemque; pectus virtutum ornare mitellis; ingenuis virtutibus mentem ornare; in ea vitam impendere studia, quæ vera certissimaque ad virtutem ducunt via.

In a brown Study; meditabundus, cogitabundus.

A very Studious and learned man; omnigena eruditione clarus, conspicuus; in omni doctrinæ genere ita versatus, ut cum primis certare possit, &c.

Unable, too weak, to Study; affecta valetudo corporis, viresque imbecillæ non patiuntur, non ferunt, non sinunt eum studiis operam dare quam par fuit; prohibent ne se totum, penitus literis, studiis addicat; impediunt quo minus immensos studiorum labores exantlare, sustinere, perferre possit. Infirmior, imbecillior est, tenuiore valetudine, corpore languidiore, debilioribus viribus, valetudinis infirmioris, infirmiore valetudine; minus habet virium, quam ut studiorum grave onus ferendo sit, laboribus immensis par esse possit. Adeo virium vitio laborat, imbecilla utitur valetudine; tanta est corporis imbecillitate, ut in studia incumbentem laborum ipsa moles facile possit opprimere. Ea valetudine non fruitur; eam corporis firmitatem natura non dedit; eas negavit ei vires quas, quam literarum laboriosa tractatio, assidua commentatio, gravissima studia postulant, requirunt, exigunt, desiderant. Corporis, virium, valetudinis infirmitas, debilitas, tenuitas, imbecillitas facit, ut studiis ei vel abstinendum sit, vel immoriendum necessario. Non mihi respondent veteres in carmina vires.

To forsake his Studies; studia literarum quibus assueverat remittere, omittere, aversari, derelinquere, deserere, &c. Studiis atque literis nuncium remittere, ultimum valedicere. A consuetudine studiorum sejungere se. A studiis atque literis operam suam et industriam alio traducere, transferre, conferre. Literarum me tædium atque fastidium cepit. Librorum nausea quadam teneor. A musis melioribus aversus, alienatus; exigua, pertenui præmiorum spe, rebus rusticis vacat, artibus quæstuariis operam dat.

To return to his Studies; pristina literarum studia, artes quibus a pueritia deditus fuit ad tempus depositas repetere, recolere. Ad studia priora rursus conferre, revocare, vindicare se. Redire in gratiam cum musis. Reddere studiis operas intermissas. Ad studiorum consuetudinem atque usum redire. Retuli me ad ea studia quæ retenta animo remissa temporibus, longo intervallo intermissa revocavi.

In posterum inquii diem distulit ; Cic. It is sometimes in this sense rendered by ad ; tum scelus illud est, te id quod promulgasses misericordiæ nomine ad crudelitatis tempus distulisse ; Cic. But in is more usual.

XI. To, before a verb, is a sign of an infinitive mood, and the verb that follows it is so rendered, if it either go before, or follow, another verb : as,

To look to both, is in a manner to ask him again, whom you have given ; ambos curare, propemodum reposcere illum est, quem dedisti ; Ter.

Note : When the infinitive mood follows a noun substantive or adjective, it is rendered by a gerund in di ; or in dum with a preposition : as,

There is not room To breathe in at Rome ; Romæ respirandi non est locus ; Cic.

He takes time To consider ; diem ad deliberandum sumit ; Cæs.

You seemed too desirous To go away ; nimium cupidus decedendi videbare ; Cic.

Very ready To put off these things ; paratissimus ad hæc propulsandum ; Cic.

Note : When the English infinitive mood, coming after a substantive, may be varied by who or which, &c. with may, can, might, &c. it may elegantly be rendered by the potential mood of the Latin verb with qui : as,

I have no friend here To (or who may) comfort me ; non, qui soletur, amicus adest ; Ovid.

The third cough has nothing To (or, which it can) do there ; nil isthic, quod agat, tertia tussis habet ; Martial.

In this case the infinitive mood, after a substantive or adjective, will sometimes be best rendered by a participle in rus : as,

See how all things rejoice the age To come, i. e. which will, shall, or may come ; aspice venturo lætentur, ut omnia seclo ; Virg.

A mind that has foreknowlege of things To come ; mens futuri præscia ; Virg.

Note : The infinitive after adjectives signifying worthiness or fitness, or their contraries, may be elegantly rendered by a subjunctive mood with qui : as,

You do not seem worthy To be free ; non videre dignus, qui liber sies ; Plaut.

Note : When the English infinitive may be varied by a finite mood with that, when, or if, it will then be respectively rendered by ut, cum, or si, with such mood as those particles require : as,

I am so weary that I have need To (or that I should) wash ; mihi præ lassitudine opus est, ut lavem ; Plaut.

I weep To (or when I) think what a life I am to have hereafter ; lacrumo, quæ posthac futura est vita, cum in mentem venit ; Ter.

He had been the maddest man in the world To have stood against them ; quos, amentissimus fuisset, si oppugnasset ; Cic.

Note : When the infinitive active comes after the sign of a verb passive, then if necessity or duty be signified, the verb is rendered by a gerund in dum : if purpose, or probability, it is rendered by a participle in rus : as,

We are To (i. e. we must or ought to) treat first of honesty ; primum est de honesto differendum ; Cic.

We are now To act Menander's Eunuch ; nunc acturi sumus Menandri Eunuchum ; Ter. Ultimum prelium initurus ; Val. Max. Lacrumo, quæ posthac futura est vita, cum in mentem venit ; Ter.

Note : The infinitive mood active, especially where there is intimation of any motion, purpose, or intent, may be elegantly rendered several ways : 1. By the first supine : as, In Asiam ad regem militatum abiit ; Ter. Mittunt rogatum auxilium ; Cæs. 2. By a participle in rus : as, Cum surges abitura domum ; Ovid. Si constitueris te cuipiam advocatum esse venturum ; Cic. 3. By a gerund in dum with a preposition : as, ad puniendum non iracundia ducuntur ; Cic. Ob absolvendum munus ne acceperis ; Cic. 4. By a gerund in di with ergo, gratia, or causa : as, Cum salutandi gratia ad Syllam venisset ; Val. Non visas, nec mittas quidem visendi causa quenquam ; Ter. 5. By a gerundive, if it have an accusative case after it : as, Non feci inflammandi tui causa ; Cic. Id egit, ut rationibus exigendis non vacaret ; Val.

Vivis, non ad deponendam, sed ad confirmandam audaciam; Cic. 6. By a subjunctive mood sometimes with ut: as, Eo proposito in Asiam veni, non, ut acciperem, quod dedissetis, sed, ut; Sen. Sometimes by qui: as, Nunciavit se missum esse, qui hæc nunciaret; Cic. 8. Note: The infinitive mood active after some adjectives is to be made by the latter supine as if it were a passive, as being to be varied by a passive: as, Wonderful To say, i. e. to be said; mirabile dictu; Virg. Filthy to see, i. e. to be seen; visu fœdum; Juv.

XII. To is sometimes a part of the verb, and is included in the Latin of it: as,

See carefully To your health; valetudinem tuam cura diligenter; Cic.

It usually comes To pass; fere fit; Cic.

XIII. To is sometimes put for for, to be, that it may be, or might be, and then is rendered by in: as,

A WISE-acre; stultus, qui mulget hircos.

There is never a WISE one betwixt them both; malleum sapientiorem manubrio.

As WISE as Solomon; plus sapit quam Thales.

A great WISE man of Gotham; vervecum in patria natus; sic dicitur vervecæa statua; uti Plautinus Hegio, servum stupidum appellat statuam vervecæam, quasi dicas, brutum ac mutum hominem.

Old men are more endued with WISDOM; senes prudentiores; senum consilia non sæpe inutilia sunt, inania, stulta, absurda; raro labitur senilis ætas; optimis ac firmissimis rationibus fere semper nititur senilis opinio, sententia; sapienter consulunt senes, optimam partem eligunt, non peccant in consilio, non errant, non labuntur, non offendunt; quorum grandior ætas, qui longius ætate processerunt, is eorum solet esse sensus, qui a ratione non discedat, recedat, procul absit, qui cum ratione congruat, quem ratio confirmet, a quo ratio non dissentiat.

The knowlege of God is better than human WISDOM; nihil sine numine felix; qui suas cogitationes ad Deum non adhibet, suis in cogitationibus non confugit ad Deum, sua consilia ad Deum non refert, cujus animus cum Deo nunquam loquitur, sæpe illum fallit humana prudentia, sæpe is ab humana prudentia in fraudem, in errores inducitur, sæpe labitur, aut offendit aut errat, ab humana prudentia ductus, ducem secutus humanam prudentiam, humanæ prudentiæ ductu, falsa quadam rerum humanarum specie deceptus.

It is WISDOM to give place to time; tempori parere sapientis est; tempori cedere, necessitati parere, res ad tempus accommodare, uti tempore, quæ tempus postulet, ea servare, atque exequi, sapientia est, sapientiæ est, sapientis est, convenit sapienti, proprium sapientis est, decet sapientem, ad sapientem pertinet; qui tempus consulit, qui rationem temporis habet, qui nullam rem agit, quam tempus improbare videatur, is vere sapiens est, hunc vere sapientem dicas, sapientem si quis hunc appellat, non errabit.

I set not much by myself, I do not account myself WISE; tanti me non facio; hoc mihi non sumo, non assumo, non arrogo, non adscisco, me ad hunc sapientiæ gradum pervenisse non puto, eam mihi sapientiam contigisse non sentio; fateor eo me sapientiæ non pervenisse, ea me sapientia non esse, non usque adeo me sapere, non ita mihi placeo, non ita mihi assentior, non eam de me opinionem suscepi, non ita me effero, non mihi tantum tribuo, non in me tantum statuo, pono, loco, non ipsi mihi tanti sum, non ita valde me amo, non ipse me tanti facio, æstimo, pendo, puto, reputo, duco.

To WISH, or desire; cupere, avere; optare, exoptare. In votis habere. Est mihi in votis. Omnibus votis exposcere, expetere. Nihil optatius, exoptatius habere. You should have WRITTEN me word; debueram scripto certior esse tuo; Ovid.

I had formerly WRITTEN you word; antea significaram tibi per literas; Cic.

A copious subject to WRITE on; argumentum locuples.

But as far as can appear by what is WRITTEN; sed quod literis exstet; Cic.

You excel in WRITING; scribendo præstas; scribis egregie, scribendi laude excellis, subtiliter et eleganter scribis, ita scribis, ita versaris in scribendo, ita te in optima scribendi ratione exerces, tua ut excellat industria, scribis ut pauci, propriam quandam laudem consequeris; præclara sunt, quæ ingenio studioque paras, quæ tua parit industria; mirabiles sunt, minime vulgares ingenii et industriæ tuæ fructus.

I would have you WRITE a history of our time and doings; velim nostras a te historias conscribi; velim a te nostrorum temporum consilia atque eventus literis mandari, res nostras monumentis commendari tuis; nostrum nomen tuis illustrari et celebrari scriptis, tuis ornari scriptis valde velim; gloriæ sempiternæ commendari per te cupio.

The ancients have WRITTEN very well of virtue; præclara scripta sunt a veteribus de virtute; ita veteres de virtute scripserunt, ut in libris eorum singulis eniteat, eluceat, emineat, excellat industria: præclara sunt a veteribus ad bene vivendum scripta, de virtutis præstantia tradita, prodita, memoriæ mandata, monumentis consignata literarum, scriptis explicata, consignata, commendata, comprehensa, expressa, explicata.

You seldom WRITE to me; raro ad me scribis; infrequens es in officio scribendi; raras a te literas accipio; minus sæpe ad me scribis, calamo parcis; officium literarum abs te requiro, in te desidero, impiger admodum in scribendo non es; crebriores a te literas postulo; non satisfacis officio tuo crebritate literarum, crebrius vellem ad me scriberes.

I may seem to be negligent in WRITING; negligens in scribendo fuisse videor.

To WRITE sharply one against another; sese mutuo stylis veneno tinctis configere; satyrice contra se invicem exacuere aciem; dentata agere charta, apud Cic. styli cuspidem in se invicem mutuo vibrare; stylum teli vice habere; carbone aliquem notare, apud Erasm. In scribendo non temperare sibi, quin incandescat animus, insultet immoderatius, amarulentius invehatur.

I WROTE to him very carefully; scripsi ad eum accurate.

An elegant WRITER; egregie subtilis et elegans scriptor.

That I might daily spend some hours in WRITING; ut quotidie aliquot horas occupationibus ereptas stylo darem.

I would have WRITTEN more at large, if the bearer could have staid longer; plura literis commisissem, si tabellarii celeritas permisisset.

I will WRITE to you more at large, when I have more leisure; pluribus ad te scribam, cum plus otii nactus fuerim.

We have had no letters WRITTEN, nor indeed any reports, from these places; nihil ex istis locis non modo literarum, sed ne rumoris quidem affluxit.

Plato had an excellent wit, and left behind him immortal WRITINGS; cujus ingenium variosque sermones immortalitati scriptis suis Plato tradidit.

That we may maintain a correspondence by WRITING; ut inter nos epistolarum commercium frequentemus.

See that you WRITE letters more frequently to me; fac ut sæpius per literas mecum agas.

Atticus WROTE the history of seven hundred years in one book; Atticus annorum septingentorum memoriam uno libro colligavit.

As he had WRITTEN in many volumes the Roman history, from the foundation of the city to the time of Alexander; ut historiam populi Romani, ab urbe condita usque ad tempora Alexandri, multis voluminibus erat complexus.

That by your WRITINGS these ancient books may be rescued from silence and oblivion; ut abs te veteres libri ab oblivione hominum atque silentio vindicarentur.

These things are so well known that they need not be WRITTEN; notiora sunt hæc, quam ut stylo egeant.

That would require many hours WRITING; multas id posceret clepsydras.

I wonder much you have never yet WRITTEN to me; nihil te ad me scripsisse demiror.

WRITE as often as you can; I would fain hear from you; ad me quam sæpissime literas mitte; tuas imprimis desidero literas. —any thing that comes to hand; de quavis materia, ad me scribere ne intermittas quæso. —this, that you have nothing to write; ubi nihil erit quod scribas, idipsum scribito. —it over again; scribe de integro. —fair, and you write fast enough; sat cito, si sat bene.

I have now at last received the letters you WROTE to me; redditæ mihi sunt jam tandem literæ.

I neither can nor will WRITE to you; non queo ad te, nec libet scribere.

The cause of my WRITING to you at this time is; harum ad te literarum occasio, est, ut.

He plays fast and loose; he WRITES *backward; he un-*writes what he had written; he eats his own words; stylum invertit suum.

The WRITING is very like; elementorum figuræ per omnia congruunt.

Who is an excellent WRITER; cujus calamus res egregias pari facundia depinxerit.

His style of WRITING is harsh and unpleasant; cujus stylus cataphractus quodammodo, horridiusculus, et a Latina suavitate alienior.

I therefore WROTE that you might know all was not right; propterea scripsi, ut me non sine causa laborare intelligeres.

I WRITE the seldomer, because I know not how to send my letters; rarius quidem ad te scribo, propterea quod rari huc intercursant, nuncii.

He will hardly be so ZEALOUS as to die for the Gospel, that will not cry for it; qui vix votum, qui vitam?

Some few fiery ZEALOTS, that have but cold discretion; zelo plane præpostero incitati.

CERTAIN PECULIAR PHRASEOLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS.

1. When a passive English is to be rendered by a Latin neuter, then the present tense English is to be made by the preterperfect tense Latin; and the English preterimperfect by the Latin preterpluperfect, or preterperfect tense at least: for example:

As we are set upon the soft grass; quandoquidem in molli consedimus herba; Virg.

After we were set; cum consedissemus; Varr. Nox abiit, nec tamen orta dies; Ovid. Vix agmen extra munitiones processerat cum Galli flumen transire non dubitabant; Cæs.

2. When an English passive is to be rendered by a Latin deponent, then vary the English passive by an English active, and so translate it: as,

Many things are said by many men, i. e. many men say many things; multi multa loquuntur; Cato. So, he is followed by many, i. e. Many follow him; multi illum sequuntur.

3. When the sign of a casual word is far off from it, or from the verb that governs it, then place the words in the natural order, and so translate them: as,

Him I dare be bold to disclose all my secrets to, i. e. I dare be bold to disclose all my secrets to him; apud eum expromere omnia mea occulta audeo; Teren.

And if any thing be wanting to complete the sense, supply it: as, Who wrote this? I: i. e. I did, or I wrote it; quis hoc scripsit? ego scripsi, or ego feci.

Note: It is not necessary always to repeat the verb, that has already been expressed, which sometimes may be better omitted; yet it may be repeated upon occasion: as, Videndum est primum utrum eæ velint, an non velint; Plaut. At etiam dubitavi vos homines emerem, an non emerem, diu; Plaut. And sometimes the verb facio for it: as, Quid est suavius, quam bene rem gerere bono publico? sicut ego feci heri; Plaut. Vale, et me, ut facis, ama; Cass. Ciceroni. Multas a te accepi epistolas, eodem die, omnes diligenter scriptas. Ea vero quæ instar voluminis erat, sæpe legenda, sicuti facio; Cic.

4. When an English phrase cannot be translated word for word, but into inelegant Latin, then vary the phrase into other words, expressing the full sense of it, and so translate it: as,

He was in hand with the old man, i. e. He deals with the old man; egit cum sene; not, erat in manu cum sene.

Let us take our heels, i. e. let us betake ourselves to our feet, or run away; nos in pedes conjiciamus, or fugiamus; not, capiamus calces nostros.

I am scarce of money, i. e. money fails me; deficit me pecunia; not, sum vix pecuniæ.

It puts me in great hope, i. e. it brings great hope to me; or, it brings me to great hope; spem mihi summam affert, or, me in summam exspectationem adducit; not, ponit me in magna spe. Submonition. And yet here great caution is to be observed in the case of mistakes; because many times the English and Latin phrases do so, as I may say, jump together, that the verbal rendering of the one will be no inelegancy in the other: as, In very deed; in reipsa; Ter.

In short; in brevi; Quintil.

I am content with it; contentus isto sum; Cic.

I know not what in the world I have; nescio quid vero habeo in mundo; Plaut.

I pray you have me excused; excusatum habeas me rogo; Martial.

To be left in suspense; in suspenso relinqui; Plin.

I put all my hope in you; in te omnem spem pono; Cic.

But when I had done all; sed cum omnia fecissem; Cic.

I was in great hope that; eram in spe magna, fore ut; Cic.

He is not in fault; is in culpa non est; Teren.

In consideration of which, and more that I could produce, it is not so easy to say what is not Latin, as what is. So that in all either supposed or real mistakes of this nature, moderation is recommended, more good being like to be done by gently showing how to do better, than by severity for not having done so well. JUVENAL and PERSIUS; on the same plan. 8vo. 8s. bound.

SALLUST; on the same plan. 8vo. 5s. bound.

⁂ At the suggestion of many Schoolmasters, Mr. Valpy has published the above DELPHIN SCHOOL BOOKS on this new plan; and should ANY difficulty occur in procuring them through the regular channel, he will readily supply them.

HOMER'S ILIAD; A New Edition, chiefly from the Text of Heyne, with ENGLISH NOTES to the first Six Books. 8vo. 12s. 6d. bound.

HOMER'S ILIAD; A New Edition, chiefly from the text of Heyne. Second Edition. 8vo. 7*s.* bound.

GRADUS AD PARNASSUM; on a New plan, omitting the Verses and Phrases; the English of the words given, also their formation. Many new words are added, with other improvements. Second Edition. duod. 7s. 6d. bound.

⁂ The present Edition is printed at the suggestion of several Schoolmasters, who have long objected to the old Gradus, as being greatly injurious to the progress of rising genius. It is only necessary to refer to the sentiments of Dr. Vicesimus KNOX on the old Gradus to establish the utility of the present plan.

JUVENAL and PERSIUS; 12mo. 3s. 6d. bound.

Do. with ENGLISH NOTES. 12mo. 5s. 6d. bound.

NEW EDITIONS LATELY PUBLISHED.

ELEGANTIÆ LATINÆ; or Rules and Exercises, illustrative of Elegant Latin Style. Intended for the use of the middle and higher Classes of Grammar Schools. By the REV. E. VALPY, B. D. Head Master of Norwich School. Seventh Edition. Improved and made easier. A general List of Phrases and an Index are also added. 4s. 6d. bound.

VIRGIL; best Text. By A. J. VALPY, M. A. 18mo. Eighth Edit. 4s. bound.

VIRGIL, with ENGLISH NOTES, Original, and selected from the Delphin and other Editions. No Interpretatio. 4th Ed. 18mo. 7*s.* 6*d.*

"The body of Notes forming the Appendix constitutes an excellent commentary upon Virgil; and must prove of peculiar benefit to the pupil in clearing up difficulties of the sense or the metre. But these explanatory notes are of still farther utility, as tending to lead juvenile minds into a train of enquiry that will expand their ideas and facilitate their progress in classical literature.—The Notes of Voss in particular contribute highly to enrich the present impression, because they have been little known in this country, and were till now confined to the original German of that learned and acute critic."—New Monthly Mag. April, 1817.

HORACE, collated from the best Editions. The objectionable Odes and Passages have been expunged. Printed uniformly with the Virgil. Third Edition. 3s. 6d. bound.

HORACE, the same Text, with English Notes to the Odes and Satires. 18mo. Third Edit. 5*s.* 6*d.*

VIRGIL, Translated into English Prose. By J. DAVIDSON, 8vo. 6s. 6d. bds.

CÆSAR'S COMMENTARIES, Translated into English. By DUNCAN. With many plates, and an Index. 8vo. 9s. 6d. bds.

As it has ever been considered superfluous to print a work which is only intended as a book of reference in a large type in order to swell the volume, the present Translations are published in such a form as to be sold at a moderate price.

GROTIUS DE VERITATE CHRIST. REL.; with all the Notes of Grotius, as well as of Le Clerc and others, put into English. 12mo. 6s. bound.

THE NEW READER; consisting of a Selection of Religious, Moral, Literary, and Historical Pieces. 12mo. 3s. 6d. bound.

THE GREEK SEPTUAGINT, with the APOCRYPHA; from the Oxford Edition of Bos and HOLMES. 1l. 8s. bds.

This Edition is hot-pressed, and handsomely printed in one volume 8vo. for use in Churches and Chapels, as well as the Library.

The GREEK TESTAMENT, Containing copious Notes from Hardy in particular, Raphel, Kypke, Schleusner, Rosenmüller, Palairet, &c. in familiar Latin: together with parallel passages from the Classics, and with references to Vigerus for Idioms, and Bos for Ellipses. GRIESBACH'S Various Readings are generally recorded in the Notes. By the Rev. E. VALPY, B. D., Chaplain to the Bishop of Norwich. 3 vols. 8vo. 2l. 12s. 6d., large paper 4l., bds.

This work is intended for the use of Students in Divinity, as well as the Library.

A learned Prelate on the Bench has pronounced every passage in this Edition to be edited and explained precisely as he himself should have done it.

THE DELPHIN CLASSICS; WITH THE VARIORUM NOTES.

INTITLED THE REGENT'S EDITION.

EDITED AND PRINTED BY A. J. VALPY, M.A.

LATE FELLOW OF PEMB. COLL. OXFORD.

The Price is 1l. 1s. each Part, Large Paper double; and as very few copies remain on hand, the prices will hereafter be increased. Very few copies are printed over the present Subscription, which amounts to 933 large and small. No. 58. is just published.

N. B. As it may not be so convenient to some new Subscribers to purchase at once the whole 58 Nos. now published, Mr. V. will accommodate such by delivering one or two back Nos. with each new No. till the set is completed.—STEPHENS' GREEK THESAURUS may be had on the same terms.

NEW AND IMPROVED EDITION OF

STEPHENS' GREEK THESAURUS.

The copies of some deceased Subscribers may be had at 1l. 5s. Small, and 2l. 12s. 6d. Large Paper. The Price will be soon raised to 1l. 7s. Small, and 2l. 15s. Large. Each Part will average 200 pages after No. IX. i. e. Part VII. Nos. I. to XXVI. contain above 13,000 words omitted by STEPHENS. Total Subscribers, Large and Small, 1086. The copies printed are strictly limited to the number of Subscribers. The work will be certainly comprised in 39 Nos. or all above given gratis; and will be completed within the year 1825.

UNIVERSAL TECHNOLOGICAL DICTIONARY; or Familiar Explanation of the Terms used in all Arts and Sciences; containing Definitions drawn from original Writers. In two large volumes, 4to. illustrated by 60 copper-plates, and more than 500 diagrams. By GEORGE CRABB, A. M. Author of English Synonymes Explained. Price 5l. 8s.

"Mr. Crabb has completed his Technological Dictionary, and has thereby rendered a valuable and acceptable service to the literature of the country. Nothing has been more wanted by students, and readers in general, than a complete alphabet of the technical language of all the Sciences: and such a task Mr. Crabb has ably and honestly performed. Nor is the work a mere dull glossary, for he has appended to his definitions, such other explanations as render the work a succinct General Cyclopædia. We recommend it as a necessary Companion to Johnson's Dictionary."—Mon. Mag. April 1823.

"We have now only to express our entire satisfaction with the execution of the work. The definitions are perspicuous, clear, and precise. We have neither the pedantry of Johnson, nor the incompetence of Bailey. The authorities are highly respectable, and although we may smile at an Editio Princeps being forced into notice where it is of no moment, we know that it is adapted to prevent much being forgotten, and to cause much to be gained; to make the studious lose less, and the negligent acquire more. The short systems are excellent accidences; and the dispersed articles of good dictionary are multum in parvo. The plates, type, and paper are of commensurate character."—Gent.'s Mag. April 1823.

ENGLISH SYNONYMES EXPLAINED, in Alphabetical Order; with copious Illustrations and Examples drawn from the best Writers. By the same Author. 8vo. The Second Edition, greatly enlarged and corrected. Price 1l. 1s.

"It is to be wished that some such works as the Abbé Girard's Synonymes Françoises were undertaken for our tongue. Nothing would contribute more to precise and elegant writing."—Blair's Lectures.

"The present work forms a valuable addition to the philological treatises we possess.—Mr. Crabb has brought to the task which he undertook a sound judgment, and an extent and accuracy of investigation, which have gone far to supply the chasm which remained in this branch of our literature.—His plan has been to class together words which have a similarity of signification; and after giving for the most part the sense common to them all, to distinguish the cases in which each is more particularly applicable. He has also noticed the difference between the literal and metaphorical usage of such as admit of both; and the style to which each is appropriated when such a distinction occurs."—Brit. Crit. Oct. 1823.

OSTELL'S NEW GENERAL ATLAS; containing distinct Maps of all the principal States and Kingdoms throughout the World; including Maps of Canaan and Judea, Ancient Greece, and the Roman Empire. In royal 4to. price only 18s. outlined, or 21s. full coloured, both handsomely half-bound; a New Edition, from an entirely New Series of Plates engraved upon an enlarged scale, and corrected from the best Authorities.

⁂ The Publishers offer this Atlas to Schools, as the most correct, the most useful, and at the same time the cheapest ever executed. They have no hesitation in saying, that it wants only to be seen to be universally adopted. It has been long used in the most respectable Seminaries in the Kingdom; and its popularity may be attributed entirely to the attention which is constantly paid to the immediate notice and introduction of every change of territory.

N. B. A few Copies are printed on imperial paper, for Libraries, price 1l. 7s.

A GREEK AND ENGLISH MANUAL LEXICON TO THE NEW TESTAMENT, with Examples of the Irregular Inflections, &c. 18mo. By J. H. BASS. Price 4s. boards.

The object of this Work is to offer to the Public, in a form fitted to bind up with the Pocket Greek Testaments, all that is necessary for a general understanding of that portion of the Holy Scriptures in the Greek Tongue. It will contain many words commonly omitted in other Lexicons.

ELEMENTS OF GREEK PROSODY AND METRE, compiled from the best Authorities, Ancient and Modern. By THOMAS WEBB. 8vo. Price 6s.

A HEBREW GRAMMAR in the English Language, with Points, by JOSEPH SAMUEL C. F. FREY. A new Edition. To which are added, a Glossary of the first six Psalms, a Compendium of Chaldee Grammar, and other important additions. By GEORGE DOWNES, A. M. late of Trinity College, Dublin. 8vo. price 7s.

⁂ An attempt is now made to remedy a deficiency which has long existed in works of this description, the almost utter omission of Syntax; while in no language, perhaps, is this department of Grammar of such paramount importance.

ESSAYS ON THE INSTITUTIONS, GOVERNMENT, AND MANNERS OF THE STATES OF ANCIENT GREECE. By HENRY DAVID HILL, D. D. Professor of Greek in the Univ. of St. Andrews. Second Edition. 12mo. price 7s.

"To young persons who are just entering upon the higher classics, and to studious men who are desirous of repairing, by their own industry, the accidental defects of an imperfect education, a more useful assistant, we think, cannot well be furnished. In the first six Essays, the author treats of the heroic age, and those institutions which concerned the Greeks generally; in the subsequent ones he confines himself to the manners and customs of those two leading states in Greece. An Essay on the Government, Manners, and Religion of the Persians, a people whom the more brilliant history of the Greeks has been suffered to throw too much into obscurity, very properly concludes the work. The style throughout is neat, easy, and perspicuous; the text (as we always wish to see it in elementary works) is undisturbed by notes; but at the end of every Essay is subjoined a list of authorities, confirming the opinion which the author has advanced in it, and affording references to works in which the subject of each Essay may be still further prosecuted."—Quarterly Review, No. 43.

SKETCHES OF THE DOMESTIC MANNERS AND INSTITUTIONS OF THE ROMANS. 12mo. 7s.

"It occurred to the Author, that a concise account of the state of society in ancient Rome, clothed in plain language, divested, as far as possible, of Latin terms, and pruned of all subjects which offend against delicacy, could not fail to be serviceable to young persons of both sexes, who are completing their education; and might, perhaps, not prove unacceptable to some of riper years."

"Carefully and judiciously compiled from a variety of the best sources, there are few books of the kind which we could recommend to be put into the hands of young persons with greater satisfaction than this little volume. Its contents embrace, we think, every subject of importance connected with Roman society, and all that may be worth knowing of the domestic affairs of a nation essentially warlike, and (compared with modern civilization) barbarous, is to be gathered from this publication in a pleasing form. It is not, indeed, for the scholar or antiquarian; but for general readers of even a well-informed class, it will be found useful as a compendium of reference and reminiscence."—Literary Gazette.

ELEMENTS OF PLANE AND SPHERICAL TRIGONOMETRY; with their Applications to Heights and Distances, Projections of the Sphere, Dialling, Astronomy, the Solution of Equations, and Geodesic Operations; intended for the Use of Mathematical Seminaries, and of First-Year Men at College. By OLINTHUS GREGORY, LL.D. of the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich; Author of Letters on the Evidence, Doctrines, and Duties of the Christian Religion; a Treatise of Mechanics; and other Works. 12mo. Price 5s. bound.
